

Welcome

Before jumping into knowledge, let's acknowledge first.

We define primordial elements the known four divine energies manifested by the elements of Fire, Earth, Water, Air and of course, less popular yet highly important the fifth, Ether or Spirit element.

It is obvious that each of these elements have their own attributes and manifest different in our physical world.

Understanding and acknowledging the attributes of these energies we can develop a stronger connection between us and the nature, our magical practice and the essence of subtle energies.

The purpose of this material is not to teach you something new but to activate a memory you already have within.

Activating sigil through fire, yet the sigil signature or the ritual is not aligned with that energy, can transmute the vibration signature of the magical craft (be it a sigil or a ritual) and instead of an intentional manifestation we can end up with a deviation with consequences we have not predicted, unexpected results and even backfire.

Use logic when you feel is needed and trust your intuition because this approach does an astonishing thing, it opens a new dimension where there's no need for faith or believe, the knowing comes intuitively.

Experience

No, I will not talk about history, spirituality and holistic nuances but share with you an experience which can help you accommodate and extend your knowledge about how to collaborate with the 4 primordial elements to charge your magical sigils.

Of course all I share can be discarded as pure fantasy but my goal is not to convince you of anything but to present you with a new perspective.

We can agree that there is bad music, low quality movies, awful artwork and of course sigils make no exception. It is safe to say that there are crappy doodles entitled as magic sigils too.

Many times I use this expression, this idea that a skilled magician can define a single dot to be representative to an entire universe and guess what, it is nothing wrong with simplicity. The power behind that simplicity comes from practitioner's experience, knowledge, knowing, belief and imagination.

Yes, sigils are that flexible yet not all creations are sigils.

Because I don't follow a path but create my own, I am able to understand the mechanics of sigil construction not by reading books and study ancient holistic history but connecting with these aspects on a deeper intuitive level, a dimension I had no idea I can tap in in a conscious way.

When you don't follow, you create.

To be able to create, you need knowledge.

Sheeps are created to follow, trees and mountains are created to stand still. We humans have this amazing ability to make choices which offers a flexibility we never fully appreciate.

The Observer state

When I work for a commissioned sigil or a custom sigil construction I change the state of my being because it proved to be highly effective and I can intuitively create, learn, understand, know and feel so much more and the results are more than noticeable.

Most individuals have a hard time trying to meditate and visualise because they attached a hard definition to the state but meditative state is quite simple to achieve, find a quiet and peaceful place and sit for 3 minutes at least doing absolutely nothing just observing your inner state.

Observing your inner state means, listen to your heart, allow your thought to come forwards and allow them to go away without you focusing on any of them.

"I cannot sit and think of nothing" -- Of course you can't.. it is impossible not to think, all you need to do is not to focus on any of your thoughts or images you see in you mind's eye and that is the state of awareness which extends around your body not only within you, but outside of you too.

"I have difficulties with clearing my head, I tried but I am easily distracted by all the noise" - Well, that's not entirely true. The fact that you say you are distracted by noise, random thoughts, images, sounds is your state of awareness. You need to learn how to "show the middle finger" to all the stuff which is not important in that moment.

All thoughts, all ideas, all your inner activity is there with purpose, all what comes your way has meaning even if you don't see it at first.

Let me teach you how to clear your noise!

Take a deep breath in through the nose for 8 seconds and with your right hand tap your heart, gently.

Keep the air in for 5 seconds and exhale deeply through the mouth for 6 seconds. No need for a timer, use your intuitive timing. repeat the breath exercises 3 or 4 times.

Now, while you are relaxed, close your eyes and allow whatever you feel, see, know, think... imply pass by, don't engage, don't focus on any thought. If that happens, simply focus on your breath again to center yourself.

That's a state of receiving. That, is what meditation is all about, stay still, keep quiet and observe.

The Call

So, in one of these situations I called the elements with the intention to find out more about how to charge sigils using these energies.

For the first 3 minutes I struggled a bit clearing my thoughts when something happened. While I was focusing on my breath and tapping my chest, I seen a small light in my mind.

This felt different, I simply knew it is not something I imagine something that my brain is processing from only my mental space, my library and because I'm curious by nature I focused my attention onto that small light in front of me.

"Where focus goes, energy flows"

A sense of knowing, a knowledge started to unfold as if it was already there yet felt like I connected the dots and stuff started to make sense.

In a second I created, I defined and projected an entity which allowed me to feel and know that is an aspect of my Higher Self.

I was excited because I could be aware of such creation within my inner dimension and the entity said not to focus on details it is not important who delivers the message but it is important what you do with the message, the experience you create, does it serve you?

I said "yes" because I didn't lose my original intention to connect with the elements and that "yes" opened the new dimensions.

From that weird blackness one can define when in meditative state a few shapes started to emerge, from almost noticeable to more and more obvious and I knew that the aspect of my Higher Self is somewhere there in the background kind of facilitating all these. It is a knowing, it feels like we do that for a very long time, it feels familiar, usual and amazing in the same time. So, in my mind I saw this green landscape and a old but wonderful tree, wind's subtle breeze ... and from behind the tree I've seen an fire entity, like a fairy but imposing, masculine energy, a bit threatening in my perception and stepped in front of the tree, said nothing, did nothing else but started to change into a more feminine entity, less imposing, smaller, even the energy I sense was more towards "hi" attitude rather than "You humans!!!"

I know that my vibe is more important than words so my higher self pushed a memory of a happy moment from my past and that changed my overall energy from "act with cautious" with "ha ha, hello there" and that felt like default state, a signature.

I saw that the eyes of the fire entity were looking behind me somewhere above and to the right and while I was noticing that my Higher Self responded that "yes, we agree to gift knowledge" and looked at the fiery entity puffing from one place to another.

When it stopped, very, very, but very close to what I sense to be my face, I kind of got scared because I felt the energy, the heat and a strange push, maybe not a push but more of a pressure.

It felt like a push from that dimension in my physical reality and when I opened my eyes I had a sense that I am back but with an entire conversation in my mind as if all that knowledge simply activated itself to pop up and let me know I can take advantage of that.

Teachers

I was asking how to use fire to charge and activate sigils and the response comes instantly as knowledge and even better questions like "when to use fire with specific sigils and when not".

Fire is a transmutation element, it can represent both masculine and feminine energy but leans more towards masculine because it is about action, dynamic, conflict as it changes one substance into another.

The quality of fire is powerful and some substances can't embody the transformation therefore some sigils are not charged or activated by fire element but transmuted into basic heat, light, smoke and particles.

Avoid using fire to charge and activate sigils related to emotional states where calm is needed, peaceful energy, collaborative energy, balancing the opposites.

Use fire to activate sigils related to action, masculine energy, because the nature of fire is conflict when dynamic (masculine energy, cleansing, transmuting negative darkness into polarity as positive darkness) and nurturing when used as in feminine nature, light, cooking, maternal protection.

Fire element can be embodied by subtle entities.

Words of power

Ignia is the name of the fiery entity and it came to me when I was burning some wood debris outside to clean the property.

I have these rhymes which I use in my mental ritual because I know how rituals work, one is activating all the other rituals made in all previous times and repetition "means business".

My ritual is in my native romanian language but I did a rough translation for english and it goes like this:

"Flame of power, heart of light,
Guide my magic, burn ever bright.
With fiery passion, lend your might,
Spirit of Fire, ignite my rite."

"Fire's spirit, strong and true,
Through my will, shine anew.
Grant your spark, empower my plea,
As I will, so let it be!"

If you feel comfortable speak the words aloud because the vibration of the energy of your voice reverberates in the universe and many other dimensions.

Burn your sigil to allow the transformation to manifest.

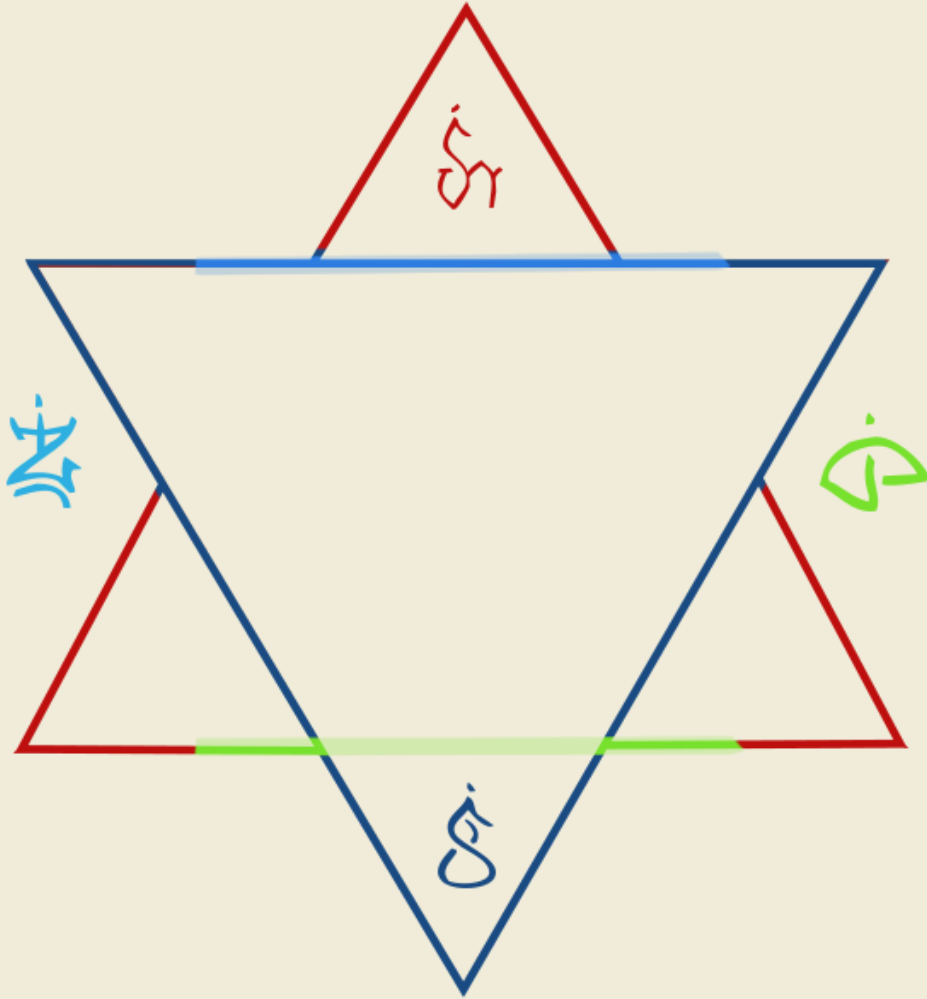

If your sigil is for cleansing, then the smoke of your sigil will carry the meaning (along with the subtle entities you want to get rid of), much like the sage or fumigation rituals tend to do.

Sigils related to passion, to conflict, to abundance, intention of protection and weaponised sigils can use Fire element to charge and activate.

Because the nature of these entities is far from what we can understand in modern times their identity is not fixed but we can name them if they are willing to accept this gift of name.

Representative entity for fire elemental is Ignia. The name of the representative elemental for earth is Gaia, yes the same as the Earth's consciousness.

The name of the entity representative to water elemental is Ondina.
And representative name for the entity of air elemental is Zephyr.

Activate the sigils using Fire Element

When working with Fire, think of its raw, transformative power. Its energy is dynamic and consuming, excellent for powerful, fast and decisive changes.

Charge and activate your sigil if any of these attributes apply:

- Masculine Energy - Strength, assertion, direct action, leadership.
- Dynamic - Rapid manifestation, quickening processes, energetic bursts.
- Conflictual - Overcoming obstacles, banishing negativity, confrontation, victory.
- Transformative - Breaking old patterns, initiation, profound change, alchemy.
- Popularity - Drawing attention, charisma, fame, recognition.
- Power - Personal empowerment, magical potency, control, influence.
- Banishment - Expelling unwanted energies, breaking curses, purification.
- Passion - Igniting desire, motivation, courage, enthusiasm.
- Protection - Fiery wards, energetic shields, repulsion of harm.
- Creativity - Sparking new ideas, inspiration, artistic drive.

Ignia - Fire

Use a red or orange candle to burn your sigil.

Use leftover burned ashes, do blow into the winds because air is the messenger and fire is friendly with air element.

Not all sigils should be charged and activated with fire .

Ignia aspect mentioned that there are self conscious energies, entities which do not operate from the same moral system as humans do so we need to keep that in mind.

Harmful or negative based magical works are as potent as the any other type of craft, we humans define the "good and bad" and we are the only ones who need to deal with the consequences of our actions.

Activate the sigils using Earth Element

The Earth element embodies stability, growth, and the tangible. It's good for bringing intentions into physical reality and building strong foundations.

Charge and activate your sigil if any of these attributes apply:

- Feminine Energy - Receptivity, grounding, inner strength, fertility.
- Balanced - Stability, harmony, equilibrium, steadfastness.
- Nurturing - Healing, comfort, support, growth, self-care.
- Abundance - Prosperity, material wealth, financial gain, manifestation of resources.
- Career Focused - Professional success, promotion, stable employment, business growth.
- Grounding - Centering oneself, feeling present, energetic stability.
- Security - Safety, protection of property, foundational strength.
- Endurance - Stamina, perseverance, long-term projects.
- Manifestation - Bringing desires into physical form, tangible results.
- Boundaries - Establishing personal limits, energetic containment.

Gaia - Earth

Sigils and rituals that involve, are specific to earth element are more permanent ones so to speak. Like sigils or a ritual for abundance.

Draw your sigil on a piece of paper and bury it, let Earth's energy manifest and help you. Hardened clay can serve as seals, sigils and wardings if crafted properly.

In that context, place such magical totems on your property for various purposes we already mentioned.

Activate the sigils using Water Element

Water is the element of emotion, intuition, and flow. It's perfect for intentions involving adaptation, cleansing, and deep emotional work.

Charge and activate your sigil if any of these attributes apply:

- Feminine Energy - Intuition, empathy, subconscious connection, emotional perspective.
- Adaptability - Flexibility, resilience, overcoming challenges gracefully.
- Change - Smooth transitions, emotional shifts, letting go (cutting cords sigils and rituals with amicable separation could use water and not fire which generates more passion -- :) just saying).
- Fluidity - Ease of movement, removing blockages, flow of opportunities.
- Activating Emotional States - Healing trauma, generating joy, compassion, courage.
- Intuition - Enhancing psychic abilities, dreams, subconscious insights.
- Purification - Cleansing negativity, emotional release, spiritual purification.
- Love - Deep emotional bonds, attraction, nurturing relationships.
- Healing - Emotional recovery, soothing pain, restoring balance.
- Connection - Empathic links, understanding others, emotional rapport.

Ondina - Water

Sigils and rituals which involve water element are quick to manifest. Cleansing sigil or ritual for example.

Draw your sigil on paper and place it on a bowl of water or under the bowl of water, the same way we can imbue water with specific intentions like healing or clarity. A pinch of salt in water adds a new level to the practice because it adds the crystalline dimension to the water.

Activate the sigils using Air Element

Air is the realm of thought, communication, and intellect. Use it for sigils representative to mental clarity, new beginnings and swift movement.

Charge and activate your sigil if any of these attributes apply:

- Connections - Networking, social influence, improved relationships through communication.
- Channeling - Receiving guidance, spiritual messages, divine inspiration.
- Intuition - Mental clarity, heightened awareness, quick understanding.
- Creativity - Brainstorming, original ideas, artistic expression.
- Messaging - Clear communication, effective speaking, persuasive writing.
- Intellect - Focus, learning, memory, problem-solving.
- Freedom - Breaking limitations, liberation, travel, new perspectives.
- Beginnings - Initiating projects, fresh starts, new ventures.
- Harmony - Peace of mind, mental balance, conflict resolution through understanding.
- Inspiration - Receiving new insights, epiphanies, sudden realizations.

Zephyr - Air

Sigils and rituals that involve air element are recommended but not limited to connecting, channeling, astral traveling, astral projections, wards and calling spiritual guardians to manifest in your state of awareness.

Smoke is a powerful environment which can be inhabited by specific entities like residual energies, static energies, energetic parasites but also thought forms and other forms of conscious projected or constructed. Draw the sigil on bay leaves, palo santo sticks and burn them as in smudging or fumigation rituals or when using paper, simply ripp off the sigil in small pieces and blow them into the wind. Very powerful for releasing anxiety, detachment, negative thoughts

About the symbols

I am aware that some individuals might have difficulties with creating images in their mind so I created these guides to help you with visualisation process.

Of course these are optional and you can use whatever stimulation works for you like gazing at burning candle, or the calming sound of the ocean (flowing river)... whatever helps you feel comfortable and connected with the elements you use in your magical craft.

I created these powerful symbols for charging sigils and as a source power to rituals related to these energies.

The circle surrounding the central symbols uses Dascentian characters and they read as follows:

- top text reads - Under divine grace
- bottom text reads - For the highest good of all

These two lines are powerful because they bypass the karmic consequences and I've already talked about that on the website

As always, I present myself.

I'm Dascent, psychic, empath, co-founder of ZentasticArts™ and Dascentian Academy of Arcane Sigils.

A self-taught esoteric scholar, my spirituality is deeply personal and independent of any kabbalistic or religious dogma.

I excel in the art of creating magic sigils, bringing transformative energy to those who work with me.

Suggestion: never, never, never create magic sigils or rituals from a state of fear, anger, resentment, revenge no matter what wording you use because the universe doesn't respond to english, italian, romanian or whatever language one is using but does respond to frequency and vibration, these are the signature energies we put out and universe matches that as a response to our energy. The universe is always supportive, it "doesn't say no", therefore, what we put out is what we receive.
